Many fashion garments feature open work effects - lace - ladders - release stitch etc the following edge is a take on that idea where we pick up floats to create an open lace look, and has a rolled hem for added interest. If you want a regular hem simply knit a circular hem then go into pattern.

The pattern is a 15 stitch and 5 row repeat so take this into consideration when planning your garment - you may need to have more stitches in between lace panels plus seaming stitches. When we transfer both sets of floats to the center of the panel we equalize the knit - if all transfers were made in the same direction the fabric would bias.

You may also want to continue selected lace panels up into the garment.
